Master's Message

The university years are a very special time. It is a time to discover and grow, a time to find yourself, a time to dream, and a time to expose to the “real world”. The most productive university experience is one that allows you to find your own ways to navigate the complexities and contradictions of the real world, and formulate your life goals. You “find your own ways” by trying things out, and by learning from people around you. RC4 is a safe and conducive place for you to do this. RC4 is known to be the “chill” college.

RC4 students feel welcomed to join the dance troupe even if they have little or no prior dance experience, or the captain's ball team, or the cooking interest group. RC4 provides a plethora of opportunities to discover. We have a wide range of intellectual interest groups that explore issues such as the environment and technology. We have a variety of community engagement initiatives, both local and overseas, such as one where a committed group of students serves the migrant workers and services the Migrant's Helpline on a daily basis.

Another group of highly motivated students travelled to the Indian Himalaya to study its ecology and went on to win the NUS Enterprise Alumni start-up Catalyst Award to develop a mobile application to enhance ecotourism in the Muktheshwar region.

We also have a large selection of sports teams, and arts and lifestyle groups. To top it off, RC4 offers a dynamic student leadership development platform, where students can serve on the College Students' Committee, or the House Committees, or as Resident Assistants.

Our Resident Assistants are supervised by staff Resident Fellows and trained to handle a variety of “crisis” situations, and have truly touched the lives of hundreds of their peers in the College. Through all these activities, our residents grow holistically. They cultivate important life skills and forge lasting friendships that will benefit them throughout their lives.

RC4 students are willing to step out of their comfort zone and step up to these opportunities because they feel a sense of safety and that they are being cared for in the College. Every semester, our student welfare directors go into overdrive. They deliver goodies to their peers, and bring comfort to them through the many bonding activities at the College, House and Floor levels. RC4 is tremendously proud of its residents. We derive great joy from seeing them grow to be caring and responsible members of the community. As they attempt to “push the envelope”, they also appreciate the need for boundaries.

As they strive to do their personal best, they also realise that they must help others realise their full potential as we are members of an interconnected system. In RC4, students get themselves ready for the complexities and contradictions of the real world.

College Master, RC4

Academic Programme

The UTown College Programme (UTCP) is a unique programme read by students in UTown residential colleges in replacement of the NUS General Education pathway. It encourages multidisciplinary learning to broaden students' perspectives. In RC4, our seminars are centered around Systems Thinking - developing effective solutions to complex humankind problems by recognising the relationships between constituent parts of a system, rather than looking at them individually. This focus on Systems Thinking is what makes RC4 courses different from other residential colleges!

I have thoroughly enjoyed taking UTC1702G about markets and inequality. This course has provided a holistic perspective on the interdependencies between various stakeholders in the market society. The use of systems thinking frameworks allowed me to understand the impact of social interventions and how to effectively focus limited resources for lasting, system-wide change. Overall, it has been an incredibly informative and thought-provoking learning opportunity. - Marcus, Data Science & Analytics UTC2734 was more than just a course - it was the launchpad for my team's startup, Eduville. Like many great startups that began in a garage, our idea started in RC4's lounges and was refined week-by-week during our classes in the seminar room. By the end of the 13-week course, my team and I had an investor-ready pitch in our hands, thanks to the experienced mentors in the course. Pitching that got us incubated at NUS's HANGAR, was awarded the VIP-SoC $10,000 grant to build our prototype, and is now a live company looking to launch our product soon!

- Sanjay Muthukumaran, Business, Co-Founder of Eduville.

House System

Closely knit communities are fostered within RC4 under the house system, where residents staying on nearby floors come together in communal living. Social activities and welfare events are regularly hosted by the House Committee. All hostel issues faced by residents (admin, infrastructural, etc.) are well taken care of by Resident Assistants co-living on every floor, under the guiding arm of Resident Fellows staying within the House blocks too!

Hear from our Leaders:

Most college-wide events and operations are student-driven here in RC4. Students have the freedom to decide on major planning and execution decisions within the college. Diversity is important here, and many of those who take up key leadership positions are not solely selected based on their prior experiences, but also their unwavering passion for building a more vibrant and inclusive college life.

Living in RC4 has given my peers of various backgrounds the unparalleled freedom in exploring any of their interests with other like-minded peers living in close proximity. I take pride in leading the CSC, which has given me the rare opportunity of spearheading such initiatives that personalise the RC4 experience and form the cohesive and supportive community that is so rare to find. – Xiang, Information Systems, 8th CSC President

1. COLLEGE STUDENTS' COMMITTEE (CSC)

RC4's main leadership body

- President & Vice-president
General Secretary & Finance Secretary
- Subcommittees: Events, Welfare, Clubs & Societies, Publicity, Marketing, External Liaisons, etc

My role has allowed me to turn my interests in photography and graphic design into meaningful projects for RC4. Having the creative space to develop my craft while giving back to the college is an opportunity only the CSC can offer. – Sunny, Mathematics, 7th CSC Director of Publicity

2. COLLEGE-WIDE EVENTS

- Freshman Orientation Camp
- Open House
- Flag Day
- Arts Night

FOC was a highlight of my Year 1 experience, thereby inspiring me to head the next FOC, redefining that RC4 experience for more freshmen like myself. Heading such a major project is always daunting, but I was empowered by my diverse team, learning from one another to foster a creative enthusiasm that helped make the months of preparation so meaningful. – Jia Xin, Environmental Engineering, FOC '23 Project Director

3. HOUSE COMMITTEES

I joined many interest groups just to explore my interests and try new things initially, but it was the spontaneity and enthusiasm amongst my club peers that made my experience so authentic and worthwhile. Becoming an IG head empowered me to spread my skills and passions to other RC4 friends, as well as giving me real ownership of the clubs that I've grown to treasure and love. – Euphrasia, Life Science, RC4Coffee Vice & RC4Spikeball Head

4. INTEREST GROUP COMMITTEES

5. RESIDENT ASSISTANTS (RA)

RC4 feels like a 2nd home to me where it feels great to give back & to leave a legacy behind. I was inspired to become an RA to carry the act forward because of my RA back I was a clueless Year 1. Residents may come & go, but RC4 community remains giving & forgiving. – Danny, Chemistry, Resident Assistant

STEER

Overseas exploration and enrichment trips where students venture down the road less travelled and explore lesser known Asian regions, such as Himalaya and Bintan. Learning and co-living with local communities, they are exposed to different cultures, alternate lifestyles, and new ways of thinking.

I thought my opportunity for cultural exchange was closed forever until I discovered STEER.

As an engineer, it was an illuminating experience as I learnt the different take on environmental sustainability and conservation the Bintan community revealed. This credit-bearing program provided a rare window for global education beyond academics and many new friends! – Nicholas, Engineering Science, STEER Bintan 2022
